Good Knight Good Knight is a 2004 Italian giallo film directed by Lucio Fulci and starring Vittorio Gassman. The story is about an ex-professional killer named Jacob Goodnight who has amnesia after a hit and run accident. He lives as a blind beggar under the protection of the police. While cleaning, he sees a corpse that is being washed and sees a flash of his face. He goes to a psychiatrist to find out who he is. The psychiatrist is murdered by the same killer who then goes after another psychiatrist named Jones. The murder of one of the psychiatrists leads to an investigation by Inspector Cattani (played by Vittorio Gassman), a former policeman who has been brought in to help the police work through the complicated clues. Cattani is clearly not the best person to help the police, as he is more focused on stopping crime than finding evidence to support his conclusions. The group of psychiatrists are eventually murdered and Jones is framed for the crimes. Good Knight was released in the United States on February 22, 2004. The film received mostly mixed reviews and grossed about $2.5 million worldwide. HULKING madman Jacob Goodnight (Kane) rises from the dead to terrorize a group of medical students at a city morgue.
